

CodeCraft Studio

For a full-stack developer named Harley Johnson, coding is her primary form of artistic creation.

CodeCraft is a portfolio website for full-stack developer and artist, Harley Johnson. Demonstrating a wide range of coding skills, from the front-end to the back-end, Harley gives potential employers a taste of her developing capabilities. As an artistic individual with a passion for computers, she has long expressed her creativity through coding, going back to the time that she was a child. Though still young in her career, she holds an intellect, talent, and creative capacity that would benefit any company or organization which hires her. Any employer searching for a new developer would benefit from looking at this portfolio.

This website features a portfolio of projects that showcase Harley's talents as a developer. A range of skills and creative talents is demonstrated through projects that include HTML, CSS, JavaScript, React, C#, Java, Python, SQL, and more. The website itself demonstrates her abilities. Also included is her background information, resume, LinkedIn profile, and a means to contact her.
